at UMass Chan
Medical School

Employing a diverse and inclusive workforce is critical for businesses. It enhances their ability to drive innovation, deliver products and services that are relevant and resonate with customers, and enhance organizational culture and productivity.

The business case for inclusion is well documented. ForHealth Consulting™ at UMass Chan Medical School provides practical guidance, education, opportunities, and connections to help you achieve your inclusion goals.

AREAS OF EXPERTISE

Workforce Development

Our workforce development initiatives support the career development, productivity, and success of employees, and help organizations sustainably scale, profit, and prosper.

Training

Our subject matter experts and instructional designers develop and deliver live and online training solutions and continuing education.

Consulting

We provide workplace inclusion subject matter expertise, resources, and experience designed to enhance and accelerate organizational strategic goals.

Our Impact

Our Work Without Limits program offers services that meet the needs of employers that actively recruit people with disabilities as employees, individuals with disabilities seeking jobs, and employment service providers that serve them. Membership in our Business Network includes business-to-business networking with leading employers who share disability inclusion questions and best practices.

Our justice, health, and equity consultants partner with communities and employers to create pathways to empower individuals returning to society. Workplaces are enriched with diverse perspectives, fostering innovation and resilience. By advancing reentry and inclusive hiring, we support employment, a key social determinant of health.

ForHealth Consulting™ at UMass Chan Medical School partners with state agencies, nonprofits, and integrated and coordinated care organizations to support the development and implementation of transformational care initiatives and solutions for our most vulnerable populations.
